The page contains a grid for writing practice. The grid is composed of 20 columns and 22 rows. The first two columns are part of a header section on a black background. The remaining 18 columns are divided into two groups of 9 columns each. Each group consists of a sequence of alternating shaded and unshaded vertical bands. The first band in each group is shaded, followed by an unshaded band, and so on. A horizontal dashed line is drawn across the entire page, separating the header from the writing area. The grid lines are black, and the background is white.
